Should be a slam dunk, but Obama "judge" will probably throw out based on politics as usual here in our kangaroo courts...

Want To Combat Climate Change–Then Mask Those Cows!

Posted on June 9, 2022

by Al Benson Jr.

If you thought you'd heard it all on the subject of climate change, well, you ain't heard nothing yet. Climate change—they used to call it “global warming” until enough evidence emerged to prove all it was another leftist ploy for more control over our lives. Once that happened, global warming fell into disrepute and so those leftists among us that want to tell us how we should live and want the power to do so had to come up with another name so they could continue their political charade. Climate Change was the name they came up with and they started the same game all over with a brand-new name.

A recent article in The New American magazine showed the ridiculous lengths these people will go to in order to force their ideology down our throats. The article noted that: “Just when you thought climate change fanatics had reached peak insanity, word comes that none other than the heir to the British throne is backing a plan that would have cows wear special face masks to control methane emitted by rumination.”

So now they want to make cows wear face masks to cut down on the methane gas they produce when chewing their cud. I’m sure that will fight climate change just great. One has to wonder if these masks will only be used on British cows or will all cows worldwide, except for those in Communist countries, be forced to mask up.

A British company has actually designed the bovine mask and the New American article also observed: “The proposed bovine mask ...contains solar powered fans intended to reduce methane emissions from cows chewing their cud into a chamber which chemically converts the methane into carbon dioxide and water vapor.” Those cows will really appreciate those solar powered fans in their masks—it will make their whole day!

I don’t know about you, but I was totally unaware that cows produced such dangerous amounts of methane gas by simply chewing their cud. Shows you what new facts you can learn when you tune in to the climate change scenario.

I wonder how this cow masking deal will work out in our American Southwest, or in Wyoming or Montana? Will all the ranchers have to hire some specially trained person to go around their ranches to make sure all their cattle are properly masked? What a boon this will be to the cattle industry! And I’m sure the feds will want to regulate this process with a whole new set of rules and regulations as to the proper masking of all cattle. More good news for cattlemen! There are even now so many federal regulations to try to follow that a Philadelphia lawyer couldn’t remember them all—even on election day. After all, it takes lots of rules to “fight climate change” and to try to regulate our lives, but fear not, the feds are more than up to that chore. The rules they make may not make any sense, but they will be on the books.

If the Brits want to mask their cattle, that’s up to them, but leave American cattle (and ranchers) alone. They have enough to deal with already, and they need this foolishness about as much as they need another hole in their heads! Maybe they can change the words of that old cowboy song to “Ride around them dogies, ride around them slow—their brand-new face masks are a rarin’ to go.”

I agree with the premise of the lawsuit 100%. As far as use of Ivermectin for Covid-19 the data related to its use is limited and has not convinced me that it's worth trying, since the drug carries its own risks. Patients with Covid-19 (I had it too) who are sold on Ivermectin are also in the camp of people who will take extra vitamins and treat their colds and other illnesses accordingly. It's likely the vitamins and minerals - not necessarily the Ivermectin - is what actually helped pull so many people through. Still, the FDA had no business interfering with what doctors wanted to prescribe their patients. The FDA overstepped its bounds.

All drugs, to include the COVID shot carry risks. Listen to any medicine ad on TV. The thing about Ivermectin is it's been around since the 70s and proven to be safe for human consumption. The COVID shot has not. In fact the tests for the shot are still on going for all the people that took it.

I think I'd take my chance on a proven medicine before being a test dummy for a new one.

I'm well aware of the risks of mRNA non-specific spike protein injections and other pharmaceuticals, probably more aware than the average person. I predicted the mRNA injection would result in auto-immune disease long before it became an established risk. I've read the research on Ivermectin for Covid-19 and I'm not convinced of its usefulness. Until a study is conducted that separates groups as follows: high dose Vitamins A, C, D3 and Zinc plus Ivermectin compared to all the same without Ivermectin, they'll never convince me that Ivermectin aids in the recovery, and that recovery is NOT due to Vitamins and Zinc alone. Add to that the fact so many recover without supplements of any kind, it's very difficult to single-out which factors truly result in a 99% recovery rate. If your pet gets into your Ivermectin, it could kill.. that is on the label, so much for safety.

By the way, do not assume that because I am not convinced of Ivermectin's usefulness based on current research, I must be in the pro-injection camp. That'd be an incorrect assumption. I do however believe the lawsuit is justified. Doctors should not have their hands tied, as they are in this instance and many others.

Meanwhile, Alex Berenson reports studies coming out of various corners of the world that purport to show ivermectin is of no value. I also see other efforts being made to sell vaccines, such as trying to keep people from feeling that getting the disease would be better, by arguing it will result in becoming diabetic, etc.

Dog and pony show. This is nothing other than Big Pharma suing Big Pharma to create an illusion of choices, and in this case it is over a psy-op virus that has never been proven to exist. All of it funded by the Fed. It is no different than Republican vs Democrat. Just one giant vote to destroy a nation.

Where's the virus?

That stupid horse pill meme is sooooo stupid. They are 10X bigger than a human would need and any doctor knows it.

There is a feed and general store near me and they had a sign saying it was illegal to sell it for human use.

Ignorance is no excuse to post pure propaganda. When Ivermectin is prescribed, it is dispensed according to the weight of the patient by the pharmacist.

Exactly what I was pointing out. I did not go to buy any I just saw a sign that was written with a marker. In sue happy CA they were probably afraid of getting sued if someone ate too much.

I don't know. I don't know if they ask. I think they were afraid someone would get sick from using too much and they would get blamed. I just saw the sign next to the cabinet.

so you think Ivermectin overdose will result in some accountability from the seller? Lol... but yet, the Jab pushers have NO accountability for side effects. Comical.
